History

President and CEO Doug Clark founded privately-owned AmeriQuest Transportation Services with a vision of uniting the independent commercial trucking industry. He recognized that consolidation would drive out independent companies unless they found new ways to compete in the marketplace. Initial success was achieved by bringing private fleets and carriers together in a new type of group purchasing organization. This business model, known as the Collective Business System™, was patented in 2002.

Since then, AmeriQuest has acquired several companies that offer additional services to customers: CURE, provider of leasing and maintenance to independent contractors, in 2010; NationaLease, the North American full service leasing organization, in 2006; and Corcentric, provider of financial process automation solutions, in 2004. Since its founding, AmeriQuest has also expanded its services beyond group purchasing to include financing, remarketing, material handling, and logistics consulting.
